(a) a negotiated withdrawal agreement and a framework for the future relationship have been approved by a resolution of the House of Commons on a motion moved by a Minister of the Crown for the purposes of section 13(1)(b) of the European Union (Withdrawal) Act 2018, or

(b) leaving the European Union without a withdrawal agreement and a framework for the future relationship has been approved by a resolution of the House of Commons on a motion moved by a Minister of the Crown, or

(c) the Prime Minister has notified the President of the European Council, in accordance with Article 50(3) of the Treaty on European Union, of the United Kingdom's request to extend the period in which the Treaties shall still apply to the United Kingdom;

believes that Parliament should have an opportunity to legislate for a process by which these decisions may be taken;

and orders accordingly that

(1) on Thursday 28 February 2019 –

(i) Standing Order No. 14(1) (which provides that government business shall have precedence at every sitting save as provided in that order) shall not apply;

Line 1, leave out from "House" to end and add "expresses alarm at the disastrous implications of a No Deal Brexit for the UK's environment, including vital protections for wildlife, nature and the marine environment, and calls on the Government to urgently rule out a No Deal scenario; notes that the public is clear that environmental protections should be maintained and improved and that the Prime Minister, Leader of the Opposition, and other political leaders, have stated they should be protected and enhanced rather than weakened following the referendum on the UK's relationship with the European Union; believes that, to achieve that aim, the Political Declaration on the UK's future relationship with the European Union must take a more dynamic and ambitious approach to regulatory protection for the environment, including by making reference to close co-operation on a wider range of transboundary issues, for example nature protection, climate change and air quality, and continued UK membership of the European Environment Agency so as to maintain a robust continent-wide evidence base on the state of the environment; notes the Government's promise to bring forward proposals for a mechanism to match, in domestic legislation, any future increases in the ambition of EU environmental policies, subject to Parliamentary approval, and calls on the Government to publish its proposals as soon as possible; believes that replacing the roles of the European Commission and European Court of Justice in terms of oversight of and compliance with domestic environmental law requires the embedding of environmental principles in UK law and the establishment of an independent and adequately resourced environmental body or bodies across the UK; further believes that the proposals for an Office for Environmental Protection in England need to be significantly strengthened to guarantee its independence from Government, include climate change within its remit and provide it with the necessary powers to ensure the monitoring, reporting, oversight and enforcement of environmental law, including both domestic and international obligations; and within this believes that changes are necessary to ensure that any actions taken at a UK-wide level do not adversely impact the devolved administrations' own climate or environmental strategies, and that any such actions are taken with the agreement of respective devolved administrations in all parts of the UK; notes that future environmental protection in the UK depends on co-operation between the governments of the four countries; and further notes that they should develop a world-leading approach to environmental protection by establishing frameworks of legally binding targets and effective spatial mapping of ecological networks.”.
