Dear Lord Sterling

Thank you for providing the Treasury and the Work and Pensions Committee with the final redacted recommendations from the governance review of the Motability Scheme.

Having now seen the nature of the redacted recommendation, it is clear to Members of both Committees that had Motability provided us with the redacted recommendation, along with your explanation as to why it was market sensitive, the Committee would have been more than happy not to publish it.

It is regrettable that it has taken almost five months for Motability to provide the Committees with this information. I hope that in future correspondence and work with the Committees, Motability will take a more forthcoming, co-operative approach, enabling an open exchange of information between all interested parties.

In order to allow Parliament to carry out its duties, it is of the utmost importance that Select Committees are provided with the information they request. On that, I'm sure we both agree.

Yours sincerely
Nicky Morgan
