PART 1

INTRODUCTORY

1 General principles

- (1) The purpose of this Act is to ensure that disabled persons enjoy the same choice, freedom, dignity, control and substantive opportunities as persons who are not disabled at home, at work, and as members of the community. 5
- (2) The following principles apply for the purpose of this Act.
- (3) Disabled persons should be able to exercise choice, freedom and control and enjoy personal dignity and substantive opportunities to participate fully in work, family life, education, public, community and cultural life. 10
- (4) Disabled persons are the best judge of their own requirements and therefore any practical assistance and associated support allocated to disabled persons following assessment should be based on their own choices, lifestyle preferences and aspirations.
- (5) Any action taken or decision made under this Act in relation to a disabled person's living arrangements and accommodation should ensure that each disabled person is empowered to determine his own living arrangements in relation to— 15

- (a) the type of accommodation or setting in which he wishes to live; and
(b) who he shares that accommodation or living space with.
- (6) In all actions concerning disabled children the best interests of the child shall be the primary consideration.
- (7) Disabled children should be able to express their views freely in relation to all matters affecting them and the views and aspirations of the child shall be given due weight in accordance with his age and maturity. 5
- (8) Disabled children should be supported to express their views freely in relation to acts done or decisions made under this Act for or on their behalf, to participate actively in those decisions and to develop greater capacity to express their views and participate in decision-making. 10
- (9) Disabled adults should be enabled and empowered to make their own decisions, with whatever support they require to do so and disabled adults who may lack or have reduced capacity to make certain decisions on their own should be supported to develop greater capacity to do so. 15
- (10) Disabled persons should not suffer detriment or be denied opportunities or benefits for reasons related to their—
- (a) age;
 - (b) colour, race, nationality or ethnic or national origins;
 - (c) impairment or any aspect of their appearance or behaviour, which might lead others to make unjustified assumptions about them; 20
 - (d) family status;
 - (e) gender reassignment;
 - (f) language;
 - (g) marital status; 25
 - (h) pregnancy;
 - (i) religion or belief;
 - (j) sex; or
 - (k) sexual orientation;
- and steps taken under this Act should be taken with a view to correcting conditions of disadvantage and social exclusion for disabled persons which arise from discrimination on the grounds listed above which may require the taking of positive measures. 30
- (11) Any action taken or decision made under this Act for or on behalf of a disabled person should be done or made with due regard to the need to respect and promote his human rights and the principles set out in this Act. 35
- (12) Carers, including those with parental responsibility for disabled children, should not be subject to any arrangements or decisions which would unduly limit their substantive opportunities for independent living or damage their health and wellbeing, and disabled persons should not be subject to consequent undue dependence in relation to anything done under this Act. 40
- (13) All those with duties under this Act shall carry out those duties to the maximum extent of their available resources.
